ABOUT

RAYSHAWN HIGHTOWER

Rayshawn Hightower is an experienced educator with 11 years of dedicated service in the field. Currently serving as the Director of Athletics for Central Unified School District, Rayshawn brings a wealth of knowledge and passion for empowering students through sports and education.

Originally from Fresno, California, Rayshawn has deep roots in his community and is committed to making a positive impact on the lives of young people. In addition to his professional achievements, Rayshawn is also an ordained minister under Kingdom Assembly Ministries, reflecting his strong faith and values.

Rayshawn is a loving father to two children, Olivia (9 years old) and Makia (7 years old), who inspire him to strive for excellence in all areas of life. Outside of work, Rayshawn enjoys a variety of activities including sports, journaling, reading, traveling, and spending time outdoors.

Driven by his passion for mentorship and community development, Rayshawn founded InsideOut Mentors, a nonprofit organization dedicated to guiding youth and community members toward their true potential. With a Christ-centered focus, InsideOut Mentors aim to foster strong, trusting relationships that inspire and motivate individuals to discover and fulfill their purpose in life.
